COPING WITH CANCER WHEN YOU'RE UNINSURED

Facing a cancer diagnosis without health insurance can be stressful. Feeling uncertain and anxious is very common, but this should not keep you from getting help. There are ways to get health insurance or find the resources you need.

FIVE WAYS TO GET HEALTH INSURANCE

1. Jobs or union. If you or your spouse has a job that offers health insurance, ask if you can get it or buy into it. If you had insurance but lost your job within the last 60 days, ask if you are eligible for COBRA (Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act). This is a law that lets you keep your insurance for 18 months, sometimes longer. You pay the full cost.

2. Your college or university. If you are a full-time or part-time student, check with your school to see if they offer insurance coverage.

3. Medicaid. Medicaid is a state-administered health insurance program that provides free or low-cost plans to millions of Americans. In the states that have “expanded” Medicaid, it covers all children and adults who are below 138% of the Federal Poverty Level. In the other states, it only covers low-income families with children, pregnant women, the blind or disabled people. To see if your state has expanded Medicaid, and to apply, visit www.healthcare.gov.

4. Medicare. If you are 65 or over, or have been deemed disabled by the Social Security Administration for two years, you may be eligible for Medicare. Contact www.medicare.gov for more information.

5. Purchase it on your own. You can buy insurance from an insurance company or through your state’s Marketplace/Exchange. If you buy it from an insurance company, you will not be eligible for discounts based on your income. Your state’s Marketplace/Exchange will consider your income and you may receive aid. This may lower the cost of your plan, deductibles or co-payments. To find your state’s Marketplace, go to www.healthcare.gov. Please note: whether from an insurance company or through the Marketplace, you can only buy it during Open Enrollment.

fact sheet

Open Enrollment occurs once a year, usually between November and January. There are a few other times when you can buy insurance: if you lose your job-based plan mid-year, get married, have a baby, move to another county or state or become eligible for Medicaid. For more information on special times when you can get insurance, visit www.healthcare.gov.

AN ONCOLOGY SOCIAL WORKER CAN HELP

Remember, you do not have to do this alone! Oncology social workers understand issues related to cancer. Call 800-813-HOPE (4673) and speak with a CancerCare professional oncology social worker. They can help you explore your insurance options and find the best resources for you.

ADDITIONAL RESOURCES

- Contact local hospitals to see what types of free care or charity care programs they offer. Speak with a financial counselor or social worker to explain your situation. Federal law requires that non-profit hospitals provide some amount of charity care in exchange for tax-exempt status.
- The Patient Advocate Foundation (PAF) provides education, legal counseling and referrals to cancer patients and survivors concerning managed care, insurance, financial issues, job discrimination and debt management. Visit www.copays.org or call 866-512-3861 for more information.
- Contact local community or religious organizations that may be able to provide guidance and resources.
