

TEEN TALK: CANCERCARE SUPPORT GROUP FOR TEENAGERS

CANCERCARE®

Over 75 Years of Help and Hope

Having a family member with a cancer diagnosis can increase feelings of confusion, anger, isolation and more.

Shannon Coon, LMSW
Children's Program Coordinator

Nikki Molfetas, MSW, LSW
Oncology Social Worker

CancerCare is offering a free, 8-week live group that will provide teenagers the opportunity to build connections with others who can understand the unique challenges that a cancer diagnosis can bring.

This program is open to teenagers ages 13-17 living in New York and New Jersey. Space is limited, but pre-registration is required

START DATE

BIWEEKLY ON WEDNESDAYS from 4 p.m. - 5 p.m. ET

This group will provide a space for teens to exchange support while discussing similar challenges of having a loved one with cancer. Activities and time to talk will allow group members the opportunity to express their feelings and receive feedback from peers dealing with similar concerns. Throughout each session, participants will have the opportunity to explore the commonalities among members and receive/provide support.

This group will be held virtually using Zoom.

Register
Today!

For more information or to register, contact Shannon Coon, LMSW, at 212-712-8423 or scoon@cancercare.org or Nikki Molfetas, LMSW, 201-301-6805 or nmolfetas@cancercare.org.

Facebook: facebook.com/cancercare | Instagram: @CancerCareUS | Twitter: @CancerCare