Caring for a Loved One Young Adult Support Group

Someone you love has been diagnosed with cancer.
They need support...and so do you.

For many young adults, caring for a parent, partner, spouse or friend who has cancer can be overwhelming. Connecting with a group of other people your own age in similar situations offers the opportunity to share your experiences and gain support from your peers.

CancerCare is currently recruiting young adult caregivers (ages 20 to 39). This group is led by a professional oncology social worker and will run for twelve weeks.
